

MILITIA OFFICERS MAKE HIGH GRADE

Army Instructor Announces
Comparative Standing of Volunteers.

MORRISON AT HEAD OF LIST

Richmond Officers Near Top.
Correspondence School Is Highly Successful.

Announcement was made yesterday by Captain J. K. Partello, Fifth Infantry, States Infantry, Inspector-Instructor on duty with the Virginia Volunteers, of the standing of all infantry officers of the militia in this State taking part in the winter's course of instruction just ended.

The showing made is regarded as excellent. Fully half of the officers made a score of more than 90 per cent. Captain Partello is highest in his grade of the interest taken by the officers in the work of increasing their own efficiency, of the few requests made to be excused, of the promptness in returning the papers, and of the high grades made.

Morrison at Top.
Captain T. T. Morrison, adjutant of the Second Virginia Infantry, leads the entire State with a score of 99 per cent. Close behind him is Major E. W. Bowles, commander of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, who made 98.7 per cent. The showing of Lieutenant Burton Couborne, commander of Company C, First Regiment, of Richmond, with 98.6. The next four are First Lieutenant M. F. James, of Company B, Richmond Blues; Lieutenant Colonel R. E. Craig, of the First Regiment; Second Lieutenant James G. Earnest, of Company D, Richmond Blues; and Captain H. W. Davant, of the Roanoke company. The showing of Lieutenant Earnest, because of his lack of experience as an officer, is especially commended.

The school was divided into two periods, from November 1 to December 16, 1912, and from January 6 to March 2, 1913. The first subject was field service regulations, and the second infantry drill regulations. There was a third subject, a military map reading, but it was abandoned because of the non-arrival of the batch of textbooks—Sheriff's Map Reading—which were tied up at some point between Fort Leavenworth and Richmond in the flood zone. While some officers submitted their papers on map reading, there was no grading on this subject, although those who submitted a high grade will be awarded certificates of proficiency.

Few Were Excused.
Officers below the rank of colonel, including regimental and battalion staff officers, but not including brigade staff officers, were required to take the school courses. Of all those included in this provision, only six were excused—three in the First Infantry and three in the Fourth. The Second and the Richmond Blues.

The questions were prepared by Captain Partello and sent to all officers, who were required to work them out without assistance and to certify that they had done so. The papers were then returned to the Inspector-Instructor, who graded them and pointed out the errors. Twice a month conferences were held at each place where there was a company, and by battalions where they existed in one town, under the supervision of the senior line officer present. At these conferences there were discussions and reviews of the work assigned for the period, with consideration of the papers and of the instructor's comments thereon.

The instruction given is the beginning of a four-year progressive course for all line officers below the grade of colonel. To all officers making a grade of 75 per cent or better, there were awarded certificates of proficiency, which work as an excuse for future attendance at schools or examinations in the theoretical parts of the subjects named.

Comparative Standing.
The comparative standing of every officer taking part is given below, as announced yesterday. It should be borne in mind that when papers were not returned within the time required, the officer affected was given a zero mark. The officer at the bottom of the list returned no papers at all. In some cases the low averages made were not the fault of the individual, but it was necessary, in rigid adherence to the rule, to score without reference to causes. The list is as follows:

First Lieutenant T. T. Morrison, Second Infantry, 99.0; Major E. W. Bowles, First Infantry, 98.7; Captain C. B. Couborne, First Infantry, 98.6; First Lieutenant M. F. James, R. L.
